The Alor-Islands

Alor, located in the eastern part of the Indonesian province Nusa Tenggara Timur, still lies outside the paths of the typical dive-tourism. As the mostly Christian inhabitants of the islands still catch their fish in a traditional way, the underwater realm of Alor is in an excellent and untouched condition. Huge coral gardens and deep drop-offs offer something special for each diver.

Sharks, and depending on the season, whale sharks, mantas and sun-fish are spotted by divers, as well as ghost pipefish, anglerfish, mandarin fish and many more. Dolphins, our daily companions on the boat-trips, watch us on our dives. Whales and orcas, which cross the waters of Alor between November to February, are a great experience for all concerned.

Snorklers, of course can have a lot of fun and compete with the locals about the best techniques.
